DEADLY RISK IN UNPACKAGED CAKES

NOVEMBER 9

After the studies on 84 packaged and unpackaged cake samples taken from different places in Istanbul, the result was surprising. According to the criteria of the Turkish Food Codex, "peanut" residue, which is one of the allergenic foods that cause the most deaths in the world, was not found suitable for consumption, especially in unpackaged cakes.

There are certain foodstuffs that we need to take for adequate and balanced nutrition, and it is very important for our nutrition to be able to take these foodstuffs safely. However, problems such as food allergies are at the forefront of food-borne health problems that affect both children and adults. Food allergies have become a public health problem that has increased its effectiveness and prevalence in recent years. The most common allergen foods worldwide have been gathered under a group by the American Food and Drug Administration (FDA). One of the allergenic foods that can even lead to death determined by law is peanuts.

THOUGHT TO BE A CISTERN, TURNS OUT TO BE A CHURCH FROM THE 4TH CENTURY

NOVEMBER 11 2021

In the Ayasuluk Hill and St. Jean Monument Excavations in Izmir, it is revealed that the building, which was previously considered as a basilica cistern, is a church with a free cross plan, and it is thought that the Gospel of John, one of the 4 Gospels accepted as the holy book by Christians, was written here.

While the Ayasuluk Hill and St. Jean Monument Excavations in the Selçuk district of İzmir continue with the support of Istanbul Gelisim University, important clues for the Christian world have been found in the excavation area. It turned out that the place where the Gospel of John, one of the 4 Gospels accepted by Christians as their holy book, was written, is a building that was previously considered as a basilica cistern.
