THE VIRTUAL VERSION OF ADDICTION: FoMO!

MAY 16

2022

The use of social media has evolved into a component that is influencing and ruling our lives day by day. Prof. Dr. Ekrem Cüneyt Evren, speaking about the virtual world disease FoMO (Fear of Missing Out), which originates from the fear that others can have more fulfilling lives than them, indicated that this condition affects general life satisfaction.

Individuals in today's world spend the majority of their time on social media, following popular topics, updating their own "status," and communicating with those of their friends. This constant updating and monitoring behavior, along with the fear of missing out, has given rise to a new concept known as FoMO (Fear of Missing Out).

FOR THE MINIMALIST LIFESTYLE: CAPSULE WARDROBE

2022

Although the phenomena known as fashion is always changing, it maintains a consistent structure that guides consumer purchase behaviors across time.

Assoc. Prof. Havva Gülçin Üstün indicated that a wardrobe arranged with timeless pieces will make a significant contribution in this regard, and that purchase behavior can be modified by creating a “capsule wardrobe.”

The phrase “capsule wardrobe” has been part of the fashion vocabulary for about 40 years. This trend, which is formed by selecting basic clothing pieces that will be used for one or more seasons in the most appropriate way based on the individual’s demands, results in significant budgetary savings for customers who tend to purchase necessary clothing.
